LIVING AT CANAVIA

The Canary Islands

The training bases and the student campus of Canavia are located on the picturesque Canary Islands - Europe's medium-haul Hawaii. A perfect place for foreign students, the islands are relaxed and unpretentious despite the low cost of living. In addition to their relaxed atmosphere, the islands are an entrepreneurial hub where innovation in business is encouraged.

Known for its safe cities with a variety of leisure and recreational activities, the islands are only a few hours' flight away from major European cities and offer twice as many beaches as the Hawaiian Islands.

//// UNIQUE LOCATION

The Canary Islands is an ideal location for pilot training due to its consistent good weather, diverse landscapes, and access to modern training facilities. The archipelago is also located in close proximity to Europe and Africa, making it a convenient location for international trainees.

//// PERFECT WEATHER ALL YEAR LONG

The Canary Islands are located off the northwest coast of Africa. The climate is subtropical and generally mild throughout the year, with temperatures ranging from 18-24°C in winter and 24-28°C in summer, creating perfect conditions for pilot training.

//// LEISURE & ACTIVITIES

The Canary Islands offer a variety of leisure activities, including hiking, surfing, and swimming. Visitors can also explore national parks and botanical gardens, or relax on the turquoise beaches.

City streets offer a wide range of shops and restaurants of all kinds. Nightlife options range from traditional Spanish bars to contemporary clubs.

One of the most popular areas for students is Las Palmas de Gran Canaria, which offers affordable living in an island but a metropolitan environment, making the city a preferred destination for student pilots.
